Who can apply to DOAB?

DOAB is open to all publishers who publish open access (OA) academic books in any language and discipline and fulfil the requirements listed below. We define open access books as scholarly peer-reviewed books including monographs, book chapters, edited collections, critical editions, and other long-form scholarly works that are available online free of charge, without any registration requirements, and licensed so that it can be further used by readers (under an open access licence such as a Creative Commons licence).

Requirements

The main requirements to be indexed in DOAB are listed below:

Website

- The publisher should own a dedicated URL and website/webpage that is accessible from any location.
- The publisher's website should be properly supported and maintained, with particular attention given to security aspects that help protect users from viruses and malware. As a minimum, the website should use https and not http, and all traffic should be redirected through https. Those responsible for the website should apply web standards and best ethical practices to the website's content, presentation, and application.
- The website should not contain information that might mislead readers or authors.
- The website should not copy another publisher's site, design, or logo. If any text is copied from another website, an acknowledgement to the source website should be declared.
- Contact details including:
